Small businesses are job creators and innovators. America’s SBDCs are the nation’s proven, cost-effective, and accredited infrastructure focused on small businesses. From 2002-2013 SBDCs have helped create 750,000 jobs, $67.5 billion in sales, and returned over $5.4 billion in federal and state revenues.

SBDCs are hosted by leading universities, colleges, state economic development agencies and private partners, and funded in part by the United States Congress through a partnership with the U.S. Small Business Administration.

Business has changed dramatically since the creation of America’s SBDCs, from the introduction of new technologies to the expansion of global trade. America’s SBDCs have been there throughout — helping small businesses succeed, and helping aspiring entrepreneurs achieve the American dream of owning their own business.

America’s SBDC represents the nationwide network of Small Business Development Centers (SBDCs) — the most comprehensive small business assistance network in the United States and its territories.

America’s SBDCs play a critical role in the health of small businesses: helping access capital, providing advice on regulations, preparing for changes in the economy and technology, and responding when disaster strikes.
